◆ TRAIL ROUTE OF 1933 ◆

BY JAMES SIMPSON

THE 1933 Trail Ride promises to be the best yet. The route to be taken leaves Lake Louise by the new Lake Louise-Jasper Highway. Providing the condition of the road permits, we hope through the kind permission of Mr. J. M. Wardle, Western Commissioner of Dominion Parks and Chief of the Dominion Highway Service, to be able to motor as far as Mosquito Creek. The route is beautiful and highly spectacular.

The pack train and saddle ponies will be waiting at Mosquito Creek. A ten-mile ride to camp at Bow Lake will make an easy breaking-in day, which may be further augmented by an after-lunch ride to Bow Pass for those who wish. Those who do not care may go fishing.

When you go to Bow Pass, swing off to the left and go to Lookout Point. This is at timberline, and is one of the most spectacular spots of the region. Eight hundred feet below you is Peyto Lake, named by Professor J. Newman Collie in 1898, after the pioneer guide Bill Peyto, who did things every year unheralded by the blare of modern publicity trumpets. At the head of the lake is Peyto

Glacier, an offshoot of the great icefield that encircles the north-western end of the Yoho Valley. To the north-west we may look for fifty miles down the Valley of the Mistaya and up the North Saskatchewan and see in the distance Nigel Peak, at Wilcox Pass, and the mountains at the head of the Brazeau. On the left of the Mistaya can be seen Howse Peak and the two Pyramids opposite the Upper and Lower Waterfowl Lakes, while in the right is Mount Silverhorn, Noyes, Murchison and an unnamed peak that no Alpinist appears to want to put a crowning cairn on its summit, and for obvious reasons:—

It is a tower of rock, more like a huge pinnacle, much over 10,000 feet, whose north-west face falls sheer 1,500 feet to an unnamed lake of considerable size amongst the cliffs. A good trail of nearly $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches in width is the only way into it that I know of, and the 300 foot drop from this to the rockslides seem out of all proportion to the risk of travel. Its northern face falls sheer to another lake whose waters empty into the Saskatchewan River direct and its south-east face falls dizzily to rockslides a thousand feet below. To those interested, try the remaining face, which is described by guides as "tough," but don't blame me for what happens. North of that, one can see the glacier-topped cliffs of Mount Wilson, named after Tom—God bless him!—and beyond that the conical peak of Mount Coleman, just above the mouth of the Alexandra River.

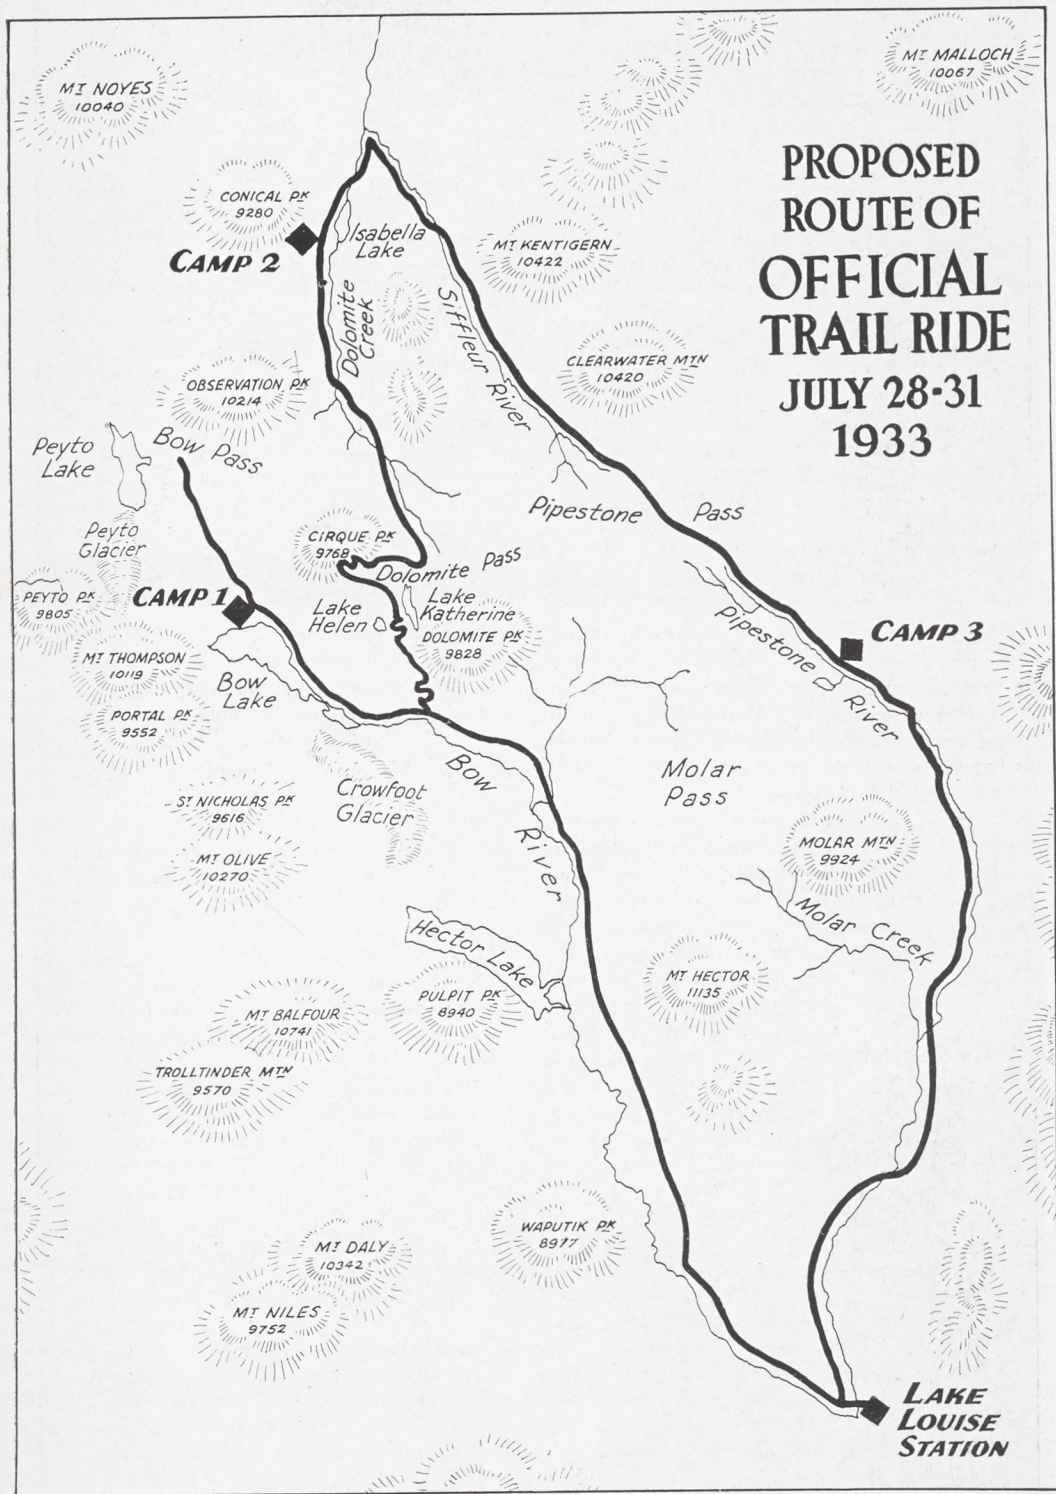

The second day's ride will be over new ground. The old Indian trail over which only three or four white outfits have travelled, to my knowledge, will be repaired and widened by the Dominion Government, under the supervision of "Frog" LaCasse, the best outdoor man in the Game Warden's service, who has made a preliminary survey and estimated costs. You will take the upper trail opposite the Crowfoot Glacier, swing over a wooded shoulder of a low peak, and pause at the top to look at Mount Assiniboine, which is plainly visible in the south-east; drop into a small valley whose waters empty into the Bow, and then begin the climb to Dolomite Pass—about 8,200 ft. You have a lunch in your pocket—and it's not your vest pocket either.

Dolomite Pass is most spectacular. The snowfield on Mt. Hector, all the peaks of the Lake Louise region, and from a high point, even Lake Louise and the Chalet can be seen. Two small lakes, Lake Catherine and Lake Helen, lie at your feet, and the cliffs of Dolomite Peak fall sheer as a mule's leg. Have your lunch before starting the descent, then make a note of the descent as you make it. The old wise Indians who first picked on the trail were no mean engineers, and for ruggedness it can take a prize of no mean piece of silverware. The trail down Dolomite Creek presents no difficulties, and an hour's ride will bring you to camp in the region of Isabella Lake, but you will have passed one of the deepest hanging glacier tongues that I know of on the eastern slope of the Rockies.

Dolomite Creek empties into the Siffleur River, but there are no fish, due to a waterfall of considerable size a mile from the Saskatchewan River into which it flows. Siffleur is French for marmot or whistler, I believe. I can swear in French and know some of the best French drinks, but linguistically my French has been neglected. The Indians call it "Cher-um-babba Wapta," meaning bridge creek, because they built a bridge above the falls. "Built" is good,—“bridge” is better. It consisted of a half-dozen pine poles thrown across the canyon without anchorage of any kind at either end. An Indian's moccasined toes will cling as tenaciously to a pine pole as his fingers will to a four-bit piece, but his white brethren are not so divinely gifted, that is, as regards adhesive toes. At first sight, I was inclined to view the scenery for the thirty-mile detour, but thoughts of burnt timber and other obstacles changed my mind. The best way to make the crossing was with one eye tightly closed, so that if a pole rolled or slipped, you had just time to close the other before eternity overtook you; but you need one open, wide open.

But where you will cross the Siffleur the water will be only knee-deep to a six weeks' old colt, and your pony will not get wet-footed again other than from the natural moisture that oozes from various springs along your trail. You'll have a lunch with you—not one of those shallow bites that one puts up after breakfast when the appetite has waned, but one with some body to it. Always put up a lunch before breakfast. To those so inclined, tie your fishing tackle to your saddle, part from the mere sedate and dignified members of the party when your horse reaches timberline approaching Pipestone Pass; leave the trail and swing over to the west side and take the old Indian trail past the high lakes and the four hanging glaciers, and continue down that side to Fish Lakes. Those on the eastern side can take the main trail over the pass, 8,300 ft., and fossilize on top, as the district is highly fossilized, but don't stay too long, as it is quite a jaunt yet to camp on the big flats below Fish Lakes on the west, and a fine waterfall on the east. The angling crowd can try the larger lake, but weather conditions may mean much. Those who want quick action go a little to the south over high ground and under the cliffs of the big peak—they will fill a small lake amongst the rocks. Go to its southern end.

The prevailing west wind blows winged tid-bits to that end, and if you don't catch fish it will be because you don't strike when they do. When it gets too dark or you too hungry go to the north side of the creek from the main lake where it enters the timber on top of the wooded slope. There you will find a trail going down to the Valley. It is not blazed, but forty head of horses have been up and down it twice, so your pony will be able to follow it if you cannot. It is only a short ride to camp.

The last day's ride will be down the Valley of the Pipestone to Lake Louise, where the Pow-Wow will be held. The trail is good and the scenery fine. You will see the icefield on Mount Hector as you will have made a complete circle of that peak as well as Mt. Molar and the Dolomite. Lake Louise should be reached by four p.m., allowing time for a wash and brush-up before the Pow-Wow.

Approaching Fish Lakes on the Pipestone

The dates for the Official Trail Ride are fixed at the usual period at the end of July, namely, Friday, July 28th, to Monday, August 1st. This date is for the convenience of Trail Riders who are also members of the Alpine Club of Canada and may wish to do some climbing before joining our party. The rates at both Banff Springs Hotel and Chateau Lake Louise will be substantially reduced for the coming summer, minimum room rate at Banff being reduced to $5.50 and at Chateau Lake Louise to $5.00. This will be particularly appreciated by Trail Riders who wish to get acclimatized to high altitudes before undertaking the proposed four-day ride over the Dolomite Pass, which is officially listed as 7,903 feet. The altitude of Bow Pass is 6,868 feet, while that of Lake Louise Station is 5,044 feet, and the lake itself is 5,680 feet.

The inclusive rate for the proposed Trail Ride covering conveyance from Lake Louise to Mosquito Creek, saddle horse, food, tent accommodation and service of guides for the trail, will be $40.00. In view of the preparations that have to be made in advance for the equipment and catering facilities necessary for so large a party in territory which has been so little travelled, it is only fair to Pat Brewster, who has to attend to all this, that he should know well in advance what number to expect. Those who intend to come this summer are therefore requested to make their reservations with the Secretary in good time, the sooner the better.

CONGRATULATIONS

Reginald Townsend, Editor of Country Life in America, writes to say that the Silver Cup offered by that magazine for the best photograph taken on the Official Trail Ride has been awarded for 1932 to Miss Cynthia Longfield. Miss Longfield also writes that she received the notification on Christmas Day and that it was the nicest of all her Christmas presents. We understand that the winning photograph will be reproduced in the June issue of Country Life in America.

SKI RUNNERS OF THE CANADIAN ROCKIES

The spectacular grandeur of the peaks and high passes of the Canadian Rockies are known in their summer beauty to thousands of Trail Riders, but this scenery in its winter garb is still known to but a few. The introduction of ski-ing is, however, making accessible the valleys and Alpine meadows from which snow has obliterated the trails, and a new Order has been formed to develop this pastime under the name of the Ski Runners of the Canadian Rockies, with a Constitution which has been drafted on lines similar to our own. Qualification of a ski runner consists of an established record of not less than fifty miles travelled on ski in this territory, qualifying for a bronze badge; 200 miles qualifies for a silver badge; 500 for a gold badge, and 1,000 for the highest grade of an enamel badge, for which also the candidate must prove (a) an ascent entirely on ski to a point on mountainside or glacier at least 9,000 feet above sea level, and a descent therefrom in free and expeditious ski-ing technique—(b) at least three major ski-tours, guided or guideless, in the Canadian Rockies—(c) knowledge of specified essentials to safe and enjoyable ski-running in the Canadian Rockies. The Secretary is Cameron Stockand, of Banff, and an overnight hut has been equipped in the Ptarmigan Valley and three cabins are provided for the accommodation of 16 to 20 guests in the Skoki Valley, north of Lake Louise. The best months for ski-ing are February, March and April, and a number of ski runners are expected from various parts of Canada, the United States and England during the coming months. The Ptarmigan and Skoki Valleys are particularly well adapted to this sport, with excellent snow conditions, slopes suitable for the novice and open alplands, free from the hazard of avalanches.

Pat Brewster also writes to say that he has equipped a number of cabins at convenient distances around Banff and Mount Assiniboine district for ski runners, and is prepared to cater for parties wishing to make winter expeditions.
